

Breaking Barriers and Leading the Way: Honoring Marilyn Munro for Women's Month

Women in the military have long defied expectations, proving their strength, resilience, and dedication to service. Marilyn Munro is one such woman who has dedicated herself not only to military service but also to continuing the mission of supporting fellow veterans. In honor of Women's Month, the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) proudly recognizes her contributions and unwavering commitment to her country and community.

---

A Journey of Service Across the Globe

Marilyn Munro's military career spanned 12 years, including three years on active duty in the Army and nine years in the Army National Guard. While serving in the National Guard, she also worked as a federal full-time technician for the Department of Defense, stationed in Lansing and Fort Custer.

Her service took her across the country and the world, with assignments in South Carolina, Kansas, Maryland, Eastern Asia, and Central Europe. She began her career as a mechanic before transitioning to a 92A supply specialist, a move that allowed her to gain a broader understanding of logistics and operations within the military.

---

A Leap of Faith into Military Life

Like many service members, Marilyn's decision to join the Army was driven by a desire for change. She wanted to leave home, explore new opportunities, and escape the traditional classroom setting. A family friend's advice ultimately guided her toward the military, encouraging her with the words: "Why don't you join the Army? You'll travel and get paid to stay in shape." Taking this suggestion to heart, Marilyn embarked on what would become a transformative journey, filled with challenges, growth, and purpose.

---

Empowering Women Veterans in the VFW

For many women who have served, the transition from military life to veteran status can feel isolating. Marilyn understands this and encourages female veterans eligible for the VFW to take a closer look at what the organization truly offers.

"I would tell any females that it's not what you think," she says. "We need you, and we're doing cool things - not just sitting at the bar telling old war stories. We're helping our fellow veterans, reaching out to schools, and engaging with the community to show that we're not done serving. Once a soldier, always a soldier - male or female."

Her words reflect the evolving mission of the VFW, which is no longer just a place for reminiscing but a powerful network of veterans working together to advocate, support, and serve.

---

A Lasting Legacy of Service

Marilyn Munro's story is a testament to the strength and determination of women in the military. She represents the new era of female veterans, proving that service does not end when the uniform comes off. By staying involved, leading by example, and encouraging others to join, she ensures that women veterans continue to have a strong voice in the VFW and beyond.

As we celebrate Women's Month, the VFW proudly honors Marilyn Munro for her service, leadership, and dedication to making a difference.